Health Nugget

What's the Biggest Mistake People Make in Starting an Exercise Program?
Business Insider by Matt Johnston April 17, 2015

"... That they have unrealistic expectations. And part B of that is that it's too much based on ego and not health and wellness. . . But I think that most people who start workout programs put all their energy on the scale, a tape measure, the reflection in the mirror and the hope that people will say really nice things about how they look in the future."

"And none of that has anything to do with your health, your wellness, your fitness, your durability, your lack of vulnerability to illness and injuries, and that's where you should start. So it's all about prioritizing and purpose, if your purpose is more about 'I wanna do more, feel better, be less vulnerable, be more durable, and actually function well in my own flesh,' then that a good way to do it."
